Introduction

In 2017, Donald Trump became only the second mentally retarded person to hold the presidency of the United States. The year was marked by the media, and other politicians, giving him chance after chance to look normal and presidential, and him whiffing it every time.

It was the year in which Hillary Clinton just couldn't shut the fuck up about how losing the election was everybody's fault but her own. WWII still hasn't started yet, but 2017 made it a topic everybody talked about, what with all the Russian conspiracy theories.

It was the year of the most ridiculous cabinet appointments in history, in which it seemed that incompetence was the criteria, rather than something to be avoided.

It was a bad year for the environment, in some ways, and a really bad year for weather, with several bad hurricanes raising hell in Texas, Florida, and, worst of all, Puerto Rico.

It was a year of mass shootings, of police killing civilians, and it was a big year for arguments about guns although, a few months into 2018, it seems this is going to be a bigger one.

It was the year of the #metoo movement, too, which I felt went a bit too far, but then, I'm not a woman.

It was also a year when robots and AI broke new ground, and it was the year self-driving cars started to seem like they might actually happen. It was a year of drones, but the cool videos and the occasionally story about pizza delivery did not nearly make up for the bombings.

It was a year in which I took a couple of really great vacations, wrote some not-so-great poetry, and had lots of wonderful personal experiences, some of which I wrote about.

And, here is the public record, one tweet per day, more or less. More or less because there may have been a few days I missed, due to being on the road or whatnot, and there might be a couple of times when you see more than one with the same date, which probably means that one was written past midnight and thusly recorded.

Anyway, I hope that you, whoever you are, enjoy them.

January, in which Donald Trump was inaugurated President of the United States, and the gates to Hell swung wide.

1 Jan

Tonight, I don't have much to say, but I do hope the Queen's O.K.

2 Jan

The Democrats will not admit, that their party has turned to shit

3 Jan

Energy is all around, just to be harvested, just to be found

4 Jan

Bernie Sanders is doing great!
Free Universities in New York State!

5 Jan

How many agencies? There are sixteen.
Who the hell are they, and what does it mean?

6 Jan

We all have a bubble, a personal zone, bright, shiny bubbles, we all have our own

7 Jan

I don't know the exact criteria, but some of the work was, for sure, inferior

8 Jan

It's not the end of the world just yet, but we're closer than I'd like to get

9 Jan

In winter, any way we go, we leave our prints upon the snow

10 Jan

The teacher can either scream and shout, or...let the students sort it out

11 Jan

Serious depravity!
Did Donald pay to watch girls pee?

12 Jan

When you meet a stranger on the way, it's hard to know just what to say

13 Jan

Politicians tend to be creeps, they can be bought, they can be bought cheap

14 Jan

We might do better at saving the trees, if we could see what the trees could see

15 Jan

From alternative reality's cornucopia, why do we always look to the dystopias?

16 Jan

Some poems, some stories, a couple of jokes, a few old timers but mostly new folks

17 Jan

The pundits just don't understand, Hillary lost because Hillary ran

18 Jan

Just one letter, one small change, and the tone of the piece is completely changed

19 Jan

Writing at speed fulfills a need whether or not there is a reader

20 Jan

Kindle or book, kindle or book, I don't really care.
I read books when I'm at home, but kindle everywhere

22 Jan

Yesterday's rally went super great, it's a really good feeling: „Love Trumps Hate“

22 Jan

Between what was said and what you heard, the difference can be absurd

23 Jan

Bureaucracy can take many forms, but it really shouldn't be the norm

24 Jan

What's written down is out of date, the world keeps turning and we're always late

25 Jan

That plots are weaker than ever before, all you need is blood and gore

26 Jan

A trail in the woods, all covered with snow, has a strange, unearthly glow

A sea of possibilities, is drifting in the void, that which is intangible can never be destroyed

29 Jan

These protests happened really fast, perhaps the resistance is here at last

30 Jan

It's silly now to argue, arguing is the worst;
I won't talk bad about her, unless you talk about her first

31 Jan

People have such short memories, so then, we will get fooled again and again and again

February, 2017, in which Donald Trump launched black history month by opening his mouth and exposing before the world that he didn't know who Frederick Douglass was, I learned a good new technique for classroom control, and NASA got our hopes up with talk of a 'big announcement, which I thought was going to be aliens because they've been discovering exoplanets like crazy and by this point they'd had plenty of time to investigate the signals from the Borra-Trottier systems, but it was just a few more boring exoplanets in the Goldilocks zones.

1 Feb

We can't predict the future, we're living day to day, we can't predict the future, there really is no way

2 Feb

The grammar is bad, but he's stupid because, he did not know who Douglass was

3 Feb

He can't go on forever this way, saying something stupider every day

4 Feb

I have opinions, that is clear, but they're not always what people want to hear

5 Feb

When you protest (and you should) any style you choose is good

6 Feb

When they host the event in different places, it seems that you also see different faces

7 Feb

If you don't want to hear what I have to say, I'm outta here, have a nice day

8 Feb

AI is not a threat, you know, unless human beings make it so

9 Feb

Make a list, go on, you know you should.
But probably it won't do any good

The left and the right are too evenly split, and that's partially why the world's turned to shit

11 Feb

The first film gets a passing grade, the second one shouldn't have been made

12 Feb

I began to write a poem, I thought I was on track, but then it took a sudden turn and I never got it back

13 Feb

A lot of people feel the same way I do, but you'd never have guessed it by watching the news

15 Feb

To me, when writing a blog, it seems absurd, to go over a couple thousand words

A good night out, among other things, was quite surprised to see who could sing

17 Feb

Mostly people just scream and shout, but what is this whole Russian thing about

18 Feb

Global Warming is real, so we must, get creative in how we adjust

19 Feb

No matter how low the standard is set, there'll be people who go below that, I bet

20 Feb

Bowling Green, Sweden, what will he say, tomorrow, tomorrow, and then the next day

NASA's announcement will be out of sight, if it's that Borra and Trottier were right

22 Feb

3 exoplanets in the Goldilocks zone still isn't proof that we're not alone

23 Feb

That Deep State exists, no one seems to doubt, so WHAT ELSE didn't we know about?

24 Feb

Sail across the oceans, go walking in the park, but the world on which we're living, is spinning in the dark

25 Feb

Tom Perez was a big mistake; how many do Democrats get to make?

26 Feb

It wasn't technically a lie, see, but truth is hard for Bill O'Reilly

27 Feb

It's Hollywood, I guess it's fair, and if it isn't, I don't care

28 Feb

We don't understand why we feel what we feel, and in that sense, magic is real

March, in which I commented on this new Facebook feature, 'Memories,' which I think is stupid, unnecessary and annoying, Terry Pratchett passed away but we will always have his books, and the magic within, and we all set the clocks an hour forward and had the great annual debate about why we bother doing such a ridiculous thing

1 Mar

Facebook memories are nice, for some, but I think they're really kind of dumb

2 Mar

It may be a nightmare, it may be great, and that's why we have to have the debate

3 Mar

Today contains a double win, the weekend and the Spring begins

4 Mar

Bees do more than pollinate.
They give us honey, and honey is great

I'm still processing all that I heard the knowledge that is known, but the writing stuff is going O.K.

Daylight Savings is a little bit strange, but I highly doubt if it's going to change

The films I watched today, were all O.K., in different ways

14 Mar

Good tea, some good music, and lots of good rhymes, good place with good people, I had a good time

15 Mar

All politicians are sleazy crooks, so there's always a reason to examine their books

Keep the lessons easy and fun, that's the way to get things done

Mar 17

Trump would not shake Merkel's hand; he's kind of a dick, you understand

18 Mar

Yesterday's news is history today, and I guess it will always be that way

The greats are passing, by and by, but rock and roll will never die

Sexbots are coming, any day, and they can be used in more than one way

Some books should not be made into movies,
On the Road was less than groovy

Franken says some pretty cool stuff, but that is not quite good enough

„I'm President and you're not,"
What an arrogant fucking snot!

24 Mar

Hooray! Hooray! It's a glorious day, the ACA is here to stay!

25 Mar

Mistakes get made, it's understood, but we're writing more, and that is good

26 Mar 2016

Medicare for All is Bernie's plan, (not the DNC, you understand)

27 Mar

Methane from the permafrost, released into the sky, will hasten global warming, so we're all going to die

28 Mar

When fear and frustration inside you are churning, it can tend to inhibit learning

29 Mar

The stories are comic, more than tragic, but Discworld is all about the magic

30 Mar

If your phone is off or you leave it behind, that's no guarantee that they won't find you

31 Mar

O.K., I may have over-reacted, but nothing needs to be retracted

April, in which Donald Trump managed to screw up the White House Easter Egg Roll, I had a guest from America giving me a fresh look at Prague, Bill O'Reilly, the guy who started all this 'War on Christmas' nonsense, the man who didn't know the difference between a loofah and a felafel, one of the sleaziest men currently in existence, finally got sacked and the world became a slightly better place for it, and we celebrated the arrival of Spring in typical Czech fashion by burning a witch

1 Apr

The day was long, and I'm worn out, from hearing people scream and shout

Spring is a season not meant to last, Summer is coming, it's coming up fast

Living in the present is fine advice, but the past and the future can also be nice

30 Apr

Our Carodejnice was quite low key, we burned a witch on the balcony

May, in which Melania Trump was caught a couple of times on camera refusing to hold the Donald's hand, Donald himself was photographed in what looked very much like a satanic ritual, and Hillary Clinton reached a new low by actually blaming the DNC for her loss

1 May

A kiss, with a flowering tree above, and you will have a year of love

2 May

Donald Trump does not know much, about the Civil War and such I'd really like to get it right

30 May

Being foreign can have its perks, feigning ignorance sometimes works

Just how classless can she be?
Now Hillary's blaming the DNC

June, in which we have some extreme heat, some extreme rain, Trump coins a new word, covfefe, which led to great speculation about what he meant but no details or explanations were ever offered, and we begin our trip to America, so I write blogs from New York, Baltimore, D.C., and North Carolina

1 Jun

Covfefe, covfefe, we don't know what he meant, and it's sad to know that such a moron is the president

2 Jun

When Trumped opted out of the Paris Accords, he sparked the wrath of many and more

3 Jun

National Security, my ass.
Bill and Loretta shouldn't get a pass

4 Jun

It was a lovely day, all I could wish, maybe, perhaps, a few too many fish

5 Jun

The poetry reading had some O.K. stuff, but the audience wasn't quite big enough

6 Jun

So much stress and so much strain, gets washed away in the pouring rain

7 Jun

Facebook shows what it wants to show, and they don't care about me and yo

8 Jun

One door leads to a future, where everything is fine, the other leads to trouble, so we should read the signs

9 Jun

Too many elections, too close, and why?
Are we really that split or is somebody lying?

10 Jun

It was another poetry night, the more I read, the more I write

11 Jun

If we become immortal, and I'm sure we will someday, weekends will go by so fast we won't know what to say

Trump only hires sycophants, so when he says dance, he knows they'll dance

13 Jun

I'm a nice teacher, I think (of course), but perhaps today I used too much force

14 Jun

As we colonize outer space, Hollywood's going to have to keep pace

15 Jun

Global warming is here and it's real, at least that's how today's heat wave feels

There needs to be some investigations, followed up with regulations

The game of life is quite unfair, but those who are winning do not care

18 Jun

This trip will be exceedingly strange, I've been gone so long and so much has changed

19 Jun

We're in New York, we have arrived, and I'm quite glad we're still alive

So much to see, so much to do, the crowds, the heat, the human zoo

21 Jun

Pulsars are really fascinating stuff, but 15 minutes would have been enough

22 Jun

An American day of food and drink, and people are pretty darned nice, I think

23 Jun

I am too heavy and yes, I guess, that means I must start eating less

When people die, they leave behind, memories in people's minds

Parts of Baltimore are pretty, others are actually kind of shitty

26 Jun

Far too many things to see, and hot as blazes in D.C.

27 Jun

A slower pace, a southern town, and a walk by the river as the sun went down

28 Jun

The sun, the sea, the surf, the sand, all go together, ain't life grand?

29 Jun

The city probably hasn't changed.

I have though, and that's what's strange

July, in which we visited my home town of Des Moines, Iowa, walked along the High Line in New York City, and returned to Prague, the Chinese did an experiment with quantum entanglement in space which may be a precursor to faster than light travel, or teleportation, but definitely sent a message that China is a major player in space, and then we took a trip to Krakow which, if you've never been there, I highly recommend

1 Jul

Every place you go, you've went, today, as a day, was a day well spent

2 Jul

It was a blast from the past, with an all-star cast

3 Jul

The kids weren't impressed with much today, but the swim at the beach made it all O.K.

4 Jul

When it wasn't raining, the drive was pretty, tomorrow we'll be in New York City

5 Jul

Arrived in New Jersey, it's late at night, and tomorrow we'll see a lot more sights

6 Jul

The High Line is green, the High Line is nice, the High Line is free, that's my favorite price

8 Jul

I know that this is nothing new, but JFK is a bloody zoo

9 Jul

A statue of something is something to see, a slab of stone is not.
I am not impressed if that is all the artist's got

10 Jul

Today I actually wrote a lot, but, oh, good lord, it's so damned hot

11 Jul

Oh, what a strange political summer; as dumb as Trump is, his son is dumber

12 Jul

China's done something very strange, the future is forever changed

13 Jul

Andy Murray sets a reporter straight.
Now all feminists think he's really great

14 Jul

We get into a rut and always do the things we do, and don't know what to do when we encounter something new

15 Jul

Someday we'll have a world where everybody's rich, but there will still be people who sit around and bitch

16 Jul

Here's a suggestion for that stupid wall, that would be good for us, one and all

17 Jul

Tulsi, Kamala, Tulsi, Kamala, different as day and night.
Tulsi is a brilliant star, Kamala is Clinton-Lite

18 Jul

People say people are stupid, but, the question is, compared to what?

19 Jul

It's surprising that she can be so wrong, when she has been around so long

20 Jul

If you haven't been to Krakow yet, it's about as scenic as a city can get

21 Jul

There are limits to how much you can say, so many impressions in one short day

22 Jul

The trip is over, the trip is done, I'm tired but it was lots of fun

23 Jul

Back in Prague, and it feels good, but I'm not doing any of the things I should

24 Jul

These stories haven't gone away, but they have been forgotten, that's how the media works because the media is rotten

25 Jul

Trump's Boy Scout speech did not go well, and it wasn't at all just because he said 'Hell.'

26 Jul

Tulsi's just had a major success, and #MedicaidforAll is coming up next

27 Jul

Robots are cool, robots are rad, but they could kill us all if we make them too mad

28 Jul

Of all of the nuts in the White House crew, Scaramucci must be the cashew

29 Jul

More information doesn't make you wise;
But if you get enough of it, it can open up your eyes

30 Jul

If Chimps have religion and that kind of stuff, then they're just like us, or near enough

31 Jul

Scaramucci fell flat on his face, the question is who will take his place

August, in which we cooled off by going to an outdoor cinema, I had some visitors from abroad and attended my first ever Gay Pride Parade, which was great fun, American Nazis rallied in Charlottesville, Virginia, a left-wing counter demonstrator was killed, and Trump praised the Nazis. It was the month in which Trump, despite being warned by everybody, looked directly at the sun during an eclipse, a judge dismissed the Beck v. DNC case* with the stunning statement "We know they are guilty, but we don't really care," (those weren't the judge's exact words, but it was pretty much the intent), and Hurricane Harvey hit Houston, with heavy flooding.

1 Aug

It's over a year, so quite belated, but murder should still be investigated

2 Aug

According to Trump's latest spokesperson loser dude, the Statue of Liberty should change her attitude

3 Aug

Outdoor cinema is cool, in every sense of the word what else can you do when the temperature is absurd

4 Aug

From the top of the mountain, looking down, you can see for miles around

5 Aug

Wherever you travel, wherever you go, there's always something there, you know

6 Aug

When robots clean dishes and polish the floors, we won't have to work any more

7 Aug

Booker says he's for legal pot, I'd like to believe him, but I do not

8 Aug

If enough people share these views, then that is the party we should choose

09 Aug

If you're not in the region, you're not involved – North Korean problem solved!

10 Aug

For richer, for poorer, for better, for worse, a book is an alternate universe

11 Aug

Lazy days are lots of fun, and on the way, some things get done

November, in which Robert Mugabe, who had been destroying Zimbabwe since 1980, was finally forced from office, there was a lot of pressure on Al Franken to resign because he took a pretend honk-honk picture with a woman who was with him on a USO tour, who was fully clothed, whose own routine was not exactly void of sexual entendre, and another full grown lady says he touched her on the butt at the State Fair while her husband took a photo, while down in Alabama, Republican Senate nominee Roy Moore, who'd been banned from a mall for always hitting on little girls, excused himself by saying the Virgin Mary was only a teenager when she had Jesus
